Book Lover

Put the verbs into the gasps in the correct tense. Pay attention to signal words.

Last week I (buy) 'Storm Front' written by Jim Butcher.

It (be) the first volume of the series about the professional wizard Harry Dresden.

While I (read) the book, I heard it simultaneously as an audio book.

The voice of James Marsters (bring) the story to life

The author (write) the story in an exciting and very hunky way.

Still I (not, buy) all the books in the series yet.

On Netflix I (watch) the movie 'The Witcher' right now.

I (read) the book before I started watching the movie.

The movie (be) good but when you read the books, you (dive) much deeper into the story.

Oliver Siebeck (read) the books in German and listening to him is a pleasure.

I (already, listen) to the audio book twice.

Ever since I (be) a teenager, I loved to read fantasy.

My love for books and especially for fantasy (never, end).

Grimms' Fairy Tales

Put the verbs into the gaps in the correct tense.

The queen, however, after (believe) she (eat) Snow-white's lungs and liver, (think) she (be) again the first and most beautiful, and (stand) before her mirror and (speak):

„Mirror, mirror on the wall, who is the fairest of them all?“

Then the mirror (reply):

„Madam Queen, your beauty (be) as fine as rare, but Snow-white (live) in a glen with seven little men (be) a thousand times more fair.“

It (happen) that the father (want) to go to the village once, so he (ask) the two stepdaughters what he (shall) bring them.

„Beautiful dresses“ (say) one,

„pearls and precious stones“ (say) the second.

„But you, Cinderella,“ he said, „what will you have?“

„Father, the first little twig that (touch)

your hat on your way home, (bring) it to me.“
