How to write a book review

1) Follow the internet links and read the book reviews about "Looking for Alaska".

- a) Fill in the gaps in the text below.
- b) Go back to the reviews on the internet and work on the useful language. Fill this in the Good notes document

📶 A book review

A book review is a form of literary criticism in which a book is analysed based on content, style, and merit. It has an introduction, a main part and a conclusion.

(1) Introduction: Fill in the correct words.

attention joke reaction This often starts with a or anecdote to catch the reader's Alternatively, it describes the reader's first or states clearl what is being reviewed.

(2) Main Part

plot outline opinion

This section consists of a short and the writer's about the central aspects of the work, supported by facts and examples.

(3) Conclusion

recommendation view warning Here the writer's is summed up and the conclusion usually includes a . Often presented as a rating. or a